End of the year rapidly approaching
We are already in September, and now is the time to start focusing on completing your work. Take a moment to check the bisque shelves to ensure that you haven’t left behind a piece of your work. Start planning out what gifts you may want to complete before we close in December.

Open Registration for January
We now have our next open registration scheduled. We have our registration for classes starting in January scheduled for October 4th at 1:00pm. Classes will be visible starting October 2nd to allow students to plan what works best for their schedules. There will be only one session of classes in this registration.

Introducing Jesse, our new instructor here at BAC
Jesse Semel, a Connecticut native, has been immersed in the world of art since childhood, influenced by his father’s artistic talents. As an artist, he found his true calling in the realm of ceramics, a medium he has explored since his high school years. Jesse’s artistic journey has been defined by his pursuit of challenging preconceived notions about art tools and functionality, bridging the gap between pottery and artistic expression.

Studying studio arts with a ceramics focus at the University of Colorado Boulder, Jesse honed his craft under the guidance of world class professors. While embracing the modern and elegant, his work accentuates the form and wheel-throwing process in each meticulously crafted piece. He developed his distinctive style by embracing the wheel, even when urged to step away from it, thus preserving the essence of what drew him to ceramics.

With a vision to inspire appreciation for art devoid of utilitarian expectations, Jesse aspires to evoke thought and emotion through his ceramic creations. His masterful approach aims to encourage others to explore the artistic potential of ceramics beyond their conventional function.

Open hours
Open hours here at Bicentennial Arts Center are only available to our current students. There are several class options for open hours as well as by the hour rates. Ask our front staff about which one best fits your needs.
